County Assessor Urges Statements Be Filed On Time

Eddy Says Service People Entitled To Exemptions

"The best way in which Ocean Beach taxpayers can assist the county assessor's office in helping make a good and equitable job for San Diego county this year is by getting their tax statements in on time," Assessor Crowell D. Eddy declared this week in a letter to The News.

In 1944, the first 11 days of the assessment period, there were received by mail and over the counter, 25,589 statements. For the corresponding 11 days for 1945, there were received 38,210 statements. This means that a considerable number of taxpayers have done better this year than they did last year by returning their mail statements promptly. However, there are still 15,000 statements that should be returned to the assessor's office at once, he says.

Every person who received a mail statement will eventually be obliged to turn in his statement. If he delays too long about it, penalties will have to be imposed. The assessor doesn't like to impose penalties any more than the taxpayer likes to receive them.

A large number of service people or their families are applying for the exemption to which they are entitled for the first time this year. Veterans who expect to receive exemption and service people who will receive exemption for the first time this year, should come to the assessor's office at as early a date as possible and make application for the exemption, announces Eddy.

Business houses which have received a postal card should retain the postal card with the data filled in until a deputy calls to take their statement, says Eddy.

OPA Invites Store Keepers To Meeting On New Regulation

Local ration board for Ocean Beach and nearby areas is inviting all the merchants of this community who are selling women's ready-to-wear, children's wear, and men's wear to attend a meeting called by the OPA at the board office, 705 Ventura Place in Mission Beach for this (Friday) afternoon, starting at 2:30 o'clock. The meeting is called in particular to acquaint these business men with the new price regulations governing the sale of the items mentioned.

BAPTISMAL SERVICE FOR SMALL CHILDREN PLANNED FOR SUNDAY AFTERNOON

A vesper baptismal service for small children has been arranged for Sunday afternoon, starting at 4 o'clock, to be held at the Point Loma Methodist church. Rev. James F. Roberts announces that parents may be baptized with their children at this service, and asks that those having children to be presented for baptism telephone him at his residence, Bayview 5509.

A "Good Friday" service is scheduled for the same church at 7:30 o'clock tonight (Friday), at which the Methodist choir will sing a special anthem and Rev. Roberts will bring a short message.

City Plans To Pave West Pt. Loma Blvd.

San Diego city is planning to re-pave W. Pt. Loma Blvd. soon as the rainy season is past, reports City Manager Fred A. Rhodes. He said the plan is to lay the new paving from Midway Dr. to Larkspur St.

Installation of a sewer line on this street in the construction of the Frontier Housing project has left the old surface in rough shape, Rhodes reports. The city plans to lay the new paving from curb to curb, he said.

Each one of the contestants was sponsored by a Lions club, and each used an original oration on the subject chosen for this year in all the Lions clubs speaking contests, "What Parents Mean To Me." Claire was sponsored by the Pacific-Mission Beach Lions club.

Along with the honor of winning, Claire also was awarded a $25 war bond and won the right to compete in the city-wide contest to be held at the San Diego club on April 17. The winner there will enter the state contest sponsored by the Lions clubs.

Community Church For Azure Vista Project Planned

Plans are under way for the organization of a community church for the Azure Vista housing project, Rev. O. F. Langehough informed The News this week. He has been conducting services at Linda Vista housing project since coming to San Diego last October from Minnesota.

First on the program for the proposed new church will be sunrise services in observance of Easter and will be held at the end of Ladera St., Sunset Cliffs, at 8 o'clock in the morning, Sunday, April 1. Rev. Langehough will be the speaker and his subject will be "The Easter Dawn."

The sermon will be delivered over a loud speaker system, he says. Special music will be provided by a guest choir from the Point Loma Methodist church, directed by James F. Roberts, pastor, and there will be a violin solo by William Cutzner.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend the Easter service, announces Rev. Langehough.

On the following Sunday, April 8, a service will be held in the Azure Vista community building for the purpose of organizing a Sunday School for that community.

The proposed church organization will be non-denominational, reports Rev. Langehough.

Two new buildings have been started on Newport Ave. S. H. Brauchler, the jeweler, has begun the construction of a modern physicians office building adjoining his jewelry store at 4811 Newport, the new structure to be 25x50 feet and to be constructed of brick. He hopes to have the building completed in another month provided the brick is available soon enough. He reports having leased the building to Dr. R. K. McLean who is now in the Dr. J. W. Wilhoit building at 4932 Newport.

The other new structure is an annex to the John E. Loftus real estate office at 4890 Newport, and is well under way. When completed the annex will mean an office double the size of the one now being used, which Messrs. Loftus and Carew have found too small for their business for some time.

Kiwanians Hear Of Observance Of Holy Week at Jerusalem

Rev. Bruce Reddish, La Jolla Bishop's School, Speaker

Expressing the hope that at the end of this war Jerusalem may become a city of peace, bringing to an end the strife and bitterness that have long characterized the various peoples that now inhabit Palestine, Father Bruce Reddish, chaplain of the Bishop school at La Jolla, concluded his address before the local Kiwanis club Tuesday evening.

This week being "Holy Week" he appropriately used that title for his talk and gave first hand information about the observance of "Holy Week" in Jerusalem as he observed it on a trip there in 1937. He spent the entire week in the Holy city and took part in the religious observance of the week there, starting with the devotionals held on Palm Sunday and ending with the services conducted on Easter Sunday.

These various services, he said, were conducted at sites in and around Jerusalem made famous by Jesus 19 centuries ago. Most archaeologists agree that the sites as now used for the "Holy Week" services are authentic, he stated. "My visit there made momentous events in religious history more real to me," he said. Father Philip Harris of the local Episcopal church was the program chairman.

President Jerry Sullivan announced the Kiwanis divisional meeting to be held at Calceico on April 5 and Tom Plant, chairman of the local April drive for used clothing for the people of the war devastated countries of Europe, announced that every Kiwanian is asked to bring used apparel to the Kiwanis Ladies' night meeting April 10 to be donated to this worthy cause. Al Hunt will be program chairman next week and the speaker will be Councilman G. C. Crary, speaking on proposed Mission Bay and Beach improvements.

Guests at Tuesday's meeting were Mr. and Mrs. McLean Wilson of National City and Alexander Wilson Stewart of Lawrence, Mass., also "Slim" Coats of Pacific Beach, the latter a guest of Dan Moss.

Annual Observance Of Easter Sunday Planned

Special Services On Program Of Ocean Beach Churches

Practically all the churches of Ocean Beach have arranged for special services the coming Sunday in observance of Easter. Their pastors provide The News with the following announcements of their programs:

Ocean Beach Baptist

Mrs. Tommy Dixon will be the accompanist.

Point Loma Methodist

The Point Loma Methodist church will observe Easter by having four inspiring services, the first to be an early morning worship service at 9 o'clock. The membership of the church, including the children, youth, and adults, are urged to attend the first service so that there may be more room for visitors at the second service at 10:45 o'clock. The first two services will be identical. Rev. James F. Roberts, pastor, will preach on the subject, "The Glorious Morning." The third service will be the vesper baptismal service at 4 in the afternoon when the sacrament of infant baptism will be observed, and the fourth will be an evening Easter service of praise and prayer. A sound film, "The Road to Emmaus," will be shown. The choir will sing special Easter anthems at all services. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services of inspiration.

Sacred Heart Catholic Church

Rev. Edward F. Hannon, pastor, announces masses will be at 7:00, 8:30 and 10:30 a. m. and noon with high masses set for the two at 7 and 10:30 Easter Sunday. At the close of these services the minister will take colored motion pictures of the congregation. Groups of servicemen are brought to the services via the church bus for those without transportation.

The Christian Scientist church will have their usual services on Sunday as will the Church of Christ.

Buy Easter Seals, Public Urged By Children's Group

An appropriate way for Ocean Beach folks to observe Easter is to aid the Society for Crippled Children of San Diego County, Inc., through the purchase of Easter Seals, according to Mrs. Leonard Ellis, chairman of the annual fund-raising campaign which is based on the colorful little stickers.

The sale, which began last week, much later than usual, will continue until April 15. Seals have been mailed to thousands of homes and recipients are asked to buy them at the rate of a penny apiece, and remit direct to the society. There is no limitation, on the amount any individual may wish to contribute.

"Easter Seals were conceived as symbolic of a season associated with rekindled hope," Mrs. Ellis said, "and it will be just that for the many physically handicapped boys and girls whom the society is helping, if our people respond as generously this year as they have in the past."

"The society urgently needs the public's support in an expanded program which will permit increased facilities and services benefiting these unfortunate youngsters. As our population increases, the demands become heavier on the society."

Merit Badges Go To 23 Boy Scouts At Meeting Friday

Shall War Housing Be Used Or Razed?

The proposal to tear down all war housing when war ends is developing a hot conflict. Some want it all demolished to keep rents from falling. Others want it kept until slums are cleared to keep rents down.

These questions will be the subject of a non-partisan open forum at the monthly meeting of the county Democratic club Friday, March 30, 7:45 p. m. at Butchers' hall, 227 E. St.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

By COL. ROBERT L. SCOTT
WNU Features.

CHAPTER IX: Burma is falling into the hands of the Japs. Flying over bombed and burned Chinese towns they land at Schwebo. Scott meets General Stilwell and his party.

CHAPTER X: Scott's group carries refugees out of Burma, heavily overloading the planes. He pays a visit to Gen. Chennault and tells him he is a fighter pilot and not a ferry pilot and is promised the next P-40 that arrives from Africa.

CHAPTER XI: Open season on Japs—the big adventure is near. Scott gets his first Jap—an army bomber on the ground. He burns up some Jap trucks and a fuel dump.

I don't know how long I walked around the fighter admiring it and caressing its wicked-looking body. I know the paint on the shark's mouth hadn't dried yet—but I'd held the suspense as long as I could. This was as if I were rolling old cherry around on my tongue; sometime I had to really taste it. Now, stepping on the walkway of the left wing, I threw first one leg and then the other over the side of the fuselage and slid into the little cockpit of the fighter. As I adjusted the rudder pedals and fastened my safety belt, I primed the engine a few shots. Turning on the toggle switches, I energized and engaged the starter with my foot, and now I heard the Allison break into a steady roar as I moved the mixture control from "idle cutoff." Out in front of me—a long distance, it seemed—the heavy, eleven-foot, three-bladed prop became a gray blur in my vision. An Allison, or any high-powered engine, doesn't have to warm up, and idling will soon foul the plugs. I was taxiing almost as soon as the engine settled down to the steady roar.

Very proudly I taxied out for my first take-off in the new Kittyhawk. All around me on the airfield I could feel the jealous eyes of every American and British pilot, even those of the earth-bound coolies—or at least my ego thought it felt their looks.

During the test flight over the dark green acres of Assam tea gardens, sweeping low over the Brahmaputra and then climbing steeply for the Naga Hills, I contemplated with keen anticipation the wonderful days that lay ahead. Here was no defenseless transport, no lumbering and unwieldy four-engine bomber—here was a fighting weapon, with a heart and a soul like the other combat ships. But more than that, here was an instrument of war with a distinct individuality, a temperamental devil of the skies. Truly like a beautiful woman, it went smoothly and sweetly at times; and then, as speed increased, it might yaw dangerously as the pressures built up. Again, it could become completely unstable. It had to be flown every second of the time; ignore it for one second and there was no automatic pilot to keep it on course, no co-pilot to help you—it would fall away and very soon would be out of control. Yes, like a beautiful woman, it demanded constant attention. There were no extra members in the crew to worry about, and here in Assam there were no other fighter ships to worry about. We were both isolated individuals.

When I had landed and had taxied back to my niche in the heavy jungle trees surrounding the field, I climbed out and reverently patted the ship on the cowl. The P-40 was fast becoming a personality to me.

Next day I tested my guns and dropped aluminum-powder practice bombs, bombs that leave a splash of aluminum paint on the ground or an aluminum slick on the water where they hit, in order to show the pilot how near he has come to the target. I aimed at the black snags in the river with the guns, then came around again and tried to dive and glide-bomb the snags with the little bombs. I was trying to train myself, trying to make up for the four years that I had been away from pursuit aviation and from tactical training in the art of killing. I needed a lot of this gunnery and bombing, for my life was very soon to depend on it.

I'll never forget the first time I pressed the trigger of my guns and heard the co-ordinated roar of the six fifty-calibre machine guns. Just by pressing a small black button below the rubber grip on my stick I could make three lines of orange tracers from each wing converge out ahead of my fast-moving fighter and the muddy river turned to foam near the targets. The sense of their power impressed me as the recoil slowed me many miles per hour in my dive; I could feel my head snap forward from the deceleration.

Sometimes when the guns on only one side would fire, the unequal kicks from the recoil would almost turn the ship.

CHAPTER XI

I couldn't waste much time in practice, for after all Burma was just over the Naga Hills and the Japs were coming towards Myitkyina from the South and up the Chindwin and the Irrawaddy. It was open season and I needed no hunting license. Now I definitely knew that adventure was near.

On that afternoon of April 30, 1942, with a full load of ammunition and the shark-mouth seeming to drip saliva, it was so eager, I waited by my ship for an alert. Jap observation planes had been coming over at high altitude very regularly. If they came today I hoped to surprise them.

At two o'clock the alert came, but it was not observation. Many unidentified aircraft were reported by a British radio somewhere over the Naga Hills. I didn't ask for more than that scanty information—I was in my fighter and climbing over the "tea ranches," as Colonel Haynes called them.

High over the field at 22,000 feet, I cuddled my oxygen mask and circled, watching for enemy ships to the East, South and Southeast—down in the direction of a course to Mandalay. I searched until my eyes hurt, but saw nothing. After about an hour, turning to a course that would take me in the direction from which an enemy had to come, I flew off to intercept—I now had barely two hours' fuel, and the farther away from my base I met them, the more successful my attack would be. Lord! the ego that I possessed! I honestly believe I thought I could shoot down any number of Japs with my single fighter. Again I say, more of the valor of ignorance.

After forty-five minutes I turned for home and began to let down to eighteen thousand. Thirty miles from the field I suddenly tensed to the alert. Off ahead of me was a dark column of smoke, rising high in the air right in the position on the world's surface that the home field should be. My tortured mind flashed back to other results of bombings that I had seen.

"My God," I moaned, "while I've been away looking for the bastards, they've slipped in here and bombed hell out of the home base!"

With tears in my eyes I nosed over and dove for the Zeros that should be strafing the field. (Later I was to learn a lot about this method too.) The smoke was from base all right, but I could see no enemy planes. The only thing in the sky was a single Douglas transport, making a normal landing on the runway. "Calling 'NR-Zero—NR-Zero,'" I asked what the fire was. The reply was muddled, but everything seemed to be in order, for I noticed two other transports clearing the field for China. I circled, then dove on the smoking ruins of the RAF operations "basha." That building had been the casualty, and it was a total loss. I could see the operations officer sitting out in the open, some hundred feet from the charred ruins, calmly carrying on his duties.

When I'd gotten my fighter parked again I went over and heard the story. No Jap attack had come, and I felt relieved—my single-ship war and I had not let the station down. But as I heard the embarrassed operations man tell his story I remember choking discreetly and leaving before I laughed myself to death.

When the alert sounded, "Opps"—the operations officer—had hurried to the window of the thatch and bamboo "basha" to see me take off in the "bloody kite—that Kittyhawk."

Seeing a transport from China about to land, and fearing that the Japs would bomb it on the field, he had then fired a Very pistol out of the operations window: the red Very light would be the signal for the transport not to land but to fly in the "stand-by" area. The Very light had gone nonchalantly out of the operations window, into the wind, had curved gracefully back into another window, and had burned the bloody building in five minutes. Operations was being carried on as usual from operations desk, which was located in front of the site of the former office. Bloody shame, wasn't it?

Well, it was tragic, but I guess it was better than a bombing. And so my first mission ended.

Came May Day, and I began the greatest month in my life. I flew every day in that long month, sometimes as many as four missions a day. By putting in a total of 214 hours and 45 minutes, I averaged over seven hours a day for the month. Most of this was in fighter ships—my little old Kittyhawk and I learned a lot, and we were very, very lucky. When I had come in from my first sortie, the day operations burned down, my pal Col. Gerry Mason kidded me a bit. Since the next day started a new month, I vowed then on the sacred relics of my great-grandmother that during those thirty-one days I would destroy a Japanese plane if I had to go all the way to Rangoon.

We got pretty confident, the transport boys and I, for I used to go with them across Burma, and Joplin and some of the other daredevils would try to lure the Jap in to attack them. Jop would call over the radio, in the clear: "NR-o from transport one three four—I'm lost near Bhamo—give me a bearing."

Up there, some three thousand feet above them, I'd be sitting with my fighter, just praying that my "decoy" would work and some luckless Jap would come in for the kill. Then Chinese soldiers and coolies look over Jap plane shot down by Col. Scott.

I'd imagine myself diving on his tail, my six's blazing. But the ruse never worked. Sometimes I think the "Great Flying Boss in the Sky" was giving me a little more practice before he put me to the supreme test.

May the fifth was one of the big days in my life. Waving good-bye to Gerry Mason as I taxied out, I saw him hold his thumb up to me to wish me good hunting. I waved back and was in the air on a sweep towards central Burma. I went straight to Myitkyina; then, seeing nothing, I swung South along the Irrawaddy over Bhamo. Continuing South I went right down on the Burma Road, North of Lashio, and searched for enemy columns. North of the airport at Lashio I saw two groups of troops in marching order. I would have strafed them immediately, but I was afraid they might be Chinese; after all, there were two Chinese armies coming North somehow in Burma. I made as though to ignore them and they partially scattered to the sides of the road. Twelve trucks in the column kept rolling to the North.

Then I momentarily forgot about the troops—for in the northwestern corner of the field at Lashio was a ship. From my altitude of 2500 feet I saw at once that it was a twin-engine enemy bomber, later identified as a Mitsubishi, Army 97. It was being serviced, for there were four gasoline drums in front of it and a truck that had evidently underran the fuel. My gun switches were already on, and had been since I had seen the troop column. Now I was diving for the grounded bomber and getting my "Christmas Tree" sight lighted properly.

Hurriedly I began to shoot. I saw men running from the truck and jumping into the bushes to the side. My first shots hit in front of the plane, probably striking the fuel drums, for heavy dust covered the enemy ship. I released my trigger as I pulled out of my dive, just clearing the trees behind my target. As I looked back I saw the red circle on one wing, but the other was covered by the body of a man who either had been shot or was trying to hide the identifying insignia.

Keeping the ship very low, I turned 180 degrees for the second attack. This time I did better. I saw my tracers go into the thin fuselage and then into the engines. At first I thought that what I was seeing was more dust; then I realized it was smoke pouring from under the ship. It was on fire. Foolishly then, I pulled up to about six hundred feet; if there had been anti-aircraft fire, I know now they would have shot me down. Again I turned and shot at the truck and the gasoline drums, and once more I saw the tracers converge on the enemy ship. Smoke was floating high in the sky—I could smell it over the odor of cordite that came from my own guns.

Keeping very low again, I turned East and found the Burma Road, turned up it and started looking for the columns which I now knew were Japanese. I approached them from the rear, fired from about a thousand yards, and the road seemed to pulverize. The closely packed troops appeared to rush back towards me as my speed cut the distance between us. I held the six guns on while I went the length of the troop column and caught the trucks. There were only six now, but I fired into all of them and two I saw burn immediately. On my second pass, as I "stepped" across the road, I shot at each truck individually, then turned for the troops again. The road was so dusty that I could barely see the bodies of those I had hit on the first pass. I suppose the others were hidden in the brush to the side. As I pulled up, I could see the black plume of smoke to the South—my first enemy ship was burning fiercely.

I made as though to leave the area, then came in again from the South on the troops after the dust had settled. They had reformed but were not as closely packed as before. Again I strafed them, but this time I saw that they were firing at me. The trucks couldn't get off the road, and I exhausted my ammunition on them in two more passes. One truck that I caught dead center with a full two-second burst seemed to blow up. When I left, I knew that four of the trucks were burning, and farther to the South I could still see the smoke of my first Jap plane rising high above the trees of Burma.

Straight back to base I went, feeling very intoxicated with success. At last I'd been able to see Japs and draw blood. In this case they had been treated just as they had been treating Allied ground troops, and I was happy.

That afternoon I went back on the second mission. I found the wrecks of four trucks and baggage, and objects that could have been men, scattered all over the road. The place where I had caught the troop column showed about forty dead men. The grounded plane had burned, and with it had burned about ten acres of the jungle. I fired a long burst into the truck and into the four fuel drums in front of the debris of the enemy bomber, but they didn't burn; I guess the morning fire had finished them. I searched the country to the North for more troops, but didn't intercept any.

I went back home highly elated—I had drawn my first blood. I felt that the world was good again. With pride I radioed General Chennault that his "shark" had been in use, that I had caught lots of rats walking along the Burma Road, and that one Army 97 bomber would fly no more for the Japs.

Well, at last I'd seen an enemy ship. It was a grounded bomber—but after all, I've learned since then that these planes on the ground are sometimes pretty rugged business to get when you're flying down on them with all the anti-aircraft fire in the world seeming to converge on you. You've got to worry about small-arms fire from every enemy soldier, too, and it takes only one little slug in the prestone radiator or the oil-cooler to stop you mighty sudden.

The next day I went to Lashio again and strafed the hangar that had once been used by China National Airways Corporation—CNAC—but I couldn't burn it. There were no ships on the field except an RAF Blenheim that had been strafed by the Japs on the ground on the North end of the runway.

I turned back to the North to look for the gasoline stores that I knew had been at Myitkyina. I was determined they were not going to fall into Jap hands. Not finding them, I spent the rest of my time flying low on the Irrawaddy, looking for enemy barges. It was a pretty unprofitable day.

When Myitkyina fell, I went over there every day to burn the gasoline that had been stored in tins in the woods to the Northeast of the end of the runway. I had found out its location from British Intelligence, but the RAF Group Captain had exacted from me a promise that I would not fire into it until he gave me the word.

It seems that he was afraid that the firing and the burning of the fuel would excite the native Burmese who were in the village. I couldn't see what difference that would make, for after all the Japs would capture the thousands of gallons of aviation gasoline, and the natives were more than likely helping them anyway. Though I held off, every time I saw the shiny four-gallon cans in the trees my finger itched to burn the cache before the enemy could use it. I passed the three days of waiting in burning three barges on the Irrawaddy, South of Bhamo, and in setting a fuel barge on fire down on the Chindwin. In this last raid my ship picked up a few small holes; evidently some Jap Continued Next Week

NICE WORK—AND YOU CAN GET IT

War production is a woman's game as well as a man's game, now that powerful machines do heavy lifting and hard cutting or rammering jobs. Women at Ryan Aeronautical Company can control big machines like this multi-hydraulic riveter with their fingertips—and they say it's more fun than anything they've ever done before. Ryan needs many more workers like these to help build $53,000,000 worth of Ryan fighting planes for the Navy. Why don't YOU take a job there? The company's downtown employment office at 1023 Fourth Avenue is always glad to talk to visitors and tell them about the good jobs now open at Ryan.

The Rehabilitation department of Red Cross is asking for golf clubs. You know many of our servicemen must walk and use muscles that are now injured before they can again enter into the life they enjoyed before they went out to fight for you and me. Please divide with these boys. They also want albums for their phonograph records.

There are many boys at the Marine Base to whom we want to send magazine subscriptions. Will you send "Liberty," "Life," "Look" or any good magazine to one of these boys? It certainly gives them a lift to have a magazine come to them in person. You can call Miss Martha Nye at F-8871 or call your center B-5639.

Would like more rugs and lamps and I have not as yet received the picture for the girls room. Surely some one has a picture that is suitable for this purpose.

Next cookie day will be our Easter day and we will decorate cakes and cookies with the Easter motif. Boxes will be decorated and each box have an Easter card in it.

Please do not forget we want an abundance of Mothers Day cards so that each boy can send a card to his mother.

The need for plasma and whole blood is great. Go to your blood donor center, 446 West Beech St. and give a pint to help save the life of one of our boys.

Next Collection Of Waste Paper To Be Made On April 9

Collection of vitally-needed newspapers and magazines will start in Postal Zone 7 Monday morning, April 9 at 8 o'clock, officials of the war salvage committee of the civilian defense council announced this week. Ocean Beach is Zone 7.

"We are asking all householders once again have their bundles of paper out on the front curbs by 8 a. m., Monday April 9 in order that our trucks can speed this paper to the paper-consuming war factories," said L. M. Nichols, committee co-chairman. The phone number of paper headquarters is M-9070.

Meanwhile, the Boy Scout troops here this week launched the General Eisenhower paper drive, now under way on a national scale, according to scout officials.

Special awards are being offered to the troop that gathers 1000 pounds per member, and also to the individual Scouts. One of these for the troop is a shell container, direct from the battlefields of Europe, it was announced. The individual medals are suitably inscribed by the commander-in-trays are an all-year around project.

More sick and wounded are returning all the time. Therefore we need more cookies and cakes. We have sugar and grease here at the center and by buying here you can save your ration points. We send in a report each month giving the amount of baked goods we make with the supplies we received.

Don't forget Wednesday is cookie day. We have a lot of pretty new aprons and shopping bags.

EASTER—

Easter has an eternal and immeasurable significance for mankind. The Resurrection of the great Nazarene was the highest and most convincing proof of his teachings. It gave to humanity unquestionable evidence of the immortality of life.

The Resurrection serves as a permanent reminder of the world that although the forces of tyranny and oppression at times seem invincible and able to defy the very power of Heaven, they are inevitably swept to destruction by the onward march of Truth.

Today darkness still covers much of the earth, but the forever fact that "right makes might" is again being demonstrated. Since last Easter the "great rock" of despotism has been "rolled away" from many a nation. In Europe Nazism and all that it stands for reels toward its doom. In Asia the days of counterpart are numbered.

Christian men and women would much rather settle differences between nations by peaceful means. But they have learned that it is wiser to take up the sword in defense of democracy and decency than to permit their God-given rights to be lost even temporarily.

Christian civilization believes in the individuality of man. It holds that even the lowliest and most humble of men are deserving of respect and consideration from their fellow beings. Christianity is the antithesis of totalitarianism.

The teachings of Jesus are something infinitely more than can be expressed in rites or rituals alone. They find their true manifestation in practical goodness in daily life.

At this Eastertide each one of us can renew his efforts to make this world a better world by making his life a better life.

APRIL FOOL'S DAY—

Don't say we didn't warn you!

If on April 1 you see a wallet lying on the street with a greenback peeking out, it's 10-to-1 somebody is peeking from a window or doorway waiting to give you the well-known horse laugh when you pick it up and find it is only a bit of April Fool's day prankishness.

Of course, in these days there is much less time for the pleasant foolishness that is tolerated, if not always approved, on the first day of April. But after all, it is the younger generation that gets the biggest kick out of the occasion and it gives them an outlet for some of the devilry they have cooked up since Hallowe'en.

So, before the day is out you may be informed that your shoelace is untied, there's a smudge of dirt on your face, or any one of a thousand things that just ain't so. But remember, we warned you.

"EASTERN THINKING"

The recent War Production Board ruling which excludes from its essential list slacks suits, women's slacks and other types of "sportswear" widely used in California for business as well as occasional wear, is another example of "eastern thinking" in making these decisions.

So-called sportswear is not a "luxury" item in California but, in many instances, is a necessity. In some manufacturing plants in our state, women are required to wear slacks as a safety measure.

Under the WPB order this type of clothing will be difficult to obtain when present stocks run out since cloth will be channeled into manufacture of "more essential" garments.

Much the same situation will prevail in certain types of men's shirts which are in heavy demand throughout the greater part of California.

We think it is high time for Washington agencies to "see the light" and not only modify this ruling but base their future decisions on conditions which prevail out here as well as on the other side of the Rockies.

Meet the "workhorse"
of the railroads

Not glamorous, not a "show-off"—the unpretentious box car. You never see it bristling with Sherman tanks, 105 mm howitzers, 10-ton trucks and jeeps, like the flat cars and gondolas. It's just a modest workhorse—doing one of the biggest war transportation jobs of all.

When you see a mile-long string of box cars, just think of this. These plain, unassuming cars are carrying the war to Japan. Inside are airplane engines, parts to outfit ships, medical supplies for our men in the Pacific, millions of tons of foodstuffs and ammunition and small arms.

For nearly all the war cargo that goes to sea, goes by rail first. And this huge transportation job is just as important as fast production in our war factories.

The humble box car best symbolizes the fact that transportation is not the job of one railroad. It's the job of all railroads working closely together—pooling their resources and exchanging equipment and facilities.

That is why you see on Southern Pacific rails the box cars of nearly every railroad in the country—New York Central, Erie, L & N, Illinois Central, Northern Pacific; Union Pacific, Burlington, Rock Island, Pennsylvania; Southern, Western Pacific, and Santa Fe to name just a few.

As the pressure on Japan increases, you will see an increasing number of war freights rolling on Southern Pacific's 15,000 miles of line. That's because Southern Pacific serves the major West Coast ports of embarkation and more military and naval establishments than any other railroad.

When you see these freight cars, representing almost every railroad, let it remind you how all the railroads are working closely together to deliver the stuff our fighting men need—on time!

They've GIVEN ALL BUT LIFE ITSELF!

WHAT CAN YOU SPARE THAT THEY CAN WEAR?

• Over the ravaged ground of war-torn Europe, trudge 125 million men, women, and children who have given all but life itself toward the same permanent peace we all are striving for.

Their need for clothing is as great as that for food—in some areas deaths from exposure equal those from starvation.

These people need something you don't. They need your spare clothing.

150 million pounds must be collected this month. Will you give your share?

What YOU Can Do!

1. Get together all the serviceable used summer and winter clothing you can spare. This includes: Men's, women's, children's, and infants' wear, and shoes. Overcoats, topcoats, suits, dresses, shirts, jackets, pants, skirts, work clothes, gloves, underwear, sleeping garments, robes, sweaters, slawis, and all knit goods. Also blankets, bedclothes.
2. Take your contribution to your local COLLECTION DEPOT now or arrange to have your LOCAL COMMITTEE collect it before April 30th.
3. Support your Local Committee not only with your clothing contribution but also with your time, effort, and energy.
